

• Los Alamos, New Mexico •

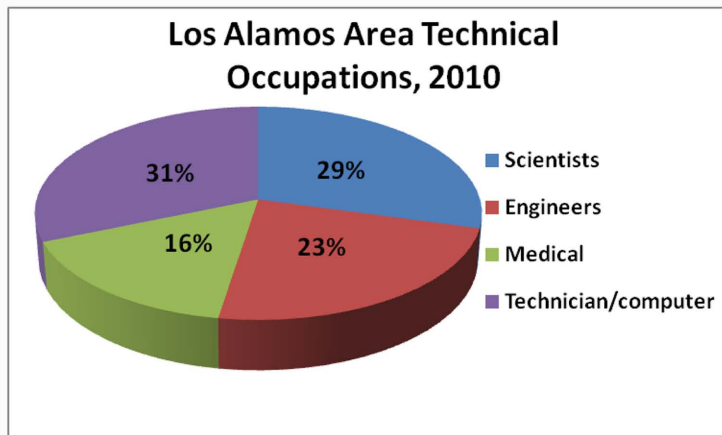

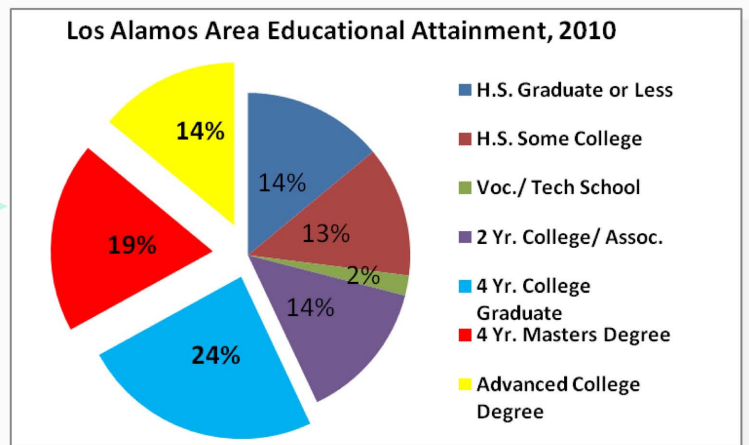

• Los Alamos Commerce & Development Corporation •

Patrick Sullivan • Business Development Director • 190 Central Park Square • Los Alamos, NM 87544

Phone: (505) 661-4854 • <http://www.locateinlosalamos.com> • patrick@losalamos.org

Los Alamos Labor Analysis 2010: Summary

• The Los Alamos Area workforce is very well educated. 57% of the adult population living in the study area have 4-year college degrees, master's degrees, or advanced degrees.

• 37% of the workforce is technical in nature (scientist, engineer, medical, or computer related), potentially 23,679 workers.

- The potential workforce living in the Los Alamos labor shed is large, technically oriented, and very well educated; 15,740 total workers (Technical occupational experience – 6,000; 4-year college degrees, master's degrees, or advanced degrees – 6,454).
 - Willing to change jobs – 7,814 workers (2,891 technical workers; 3,204 with 4-year college degree, master's degree or advanced degree).
 - Willing to re-enter if unemployed or retired – 7,926 workers (4,676 retired; 3,000+ are technical).

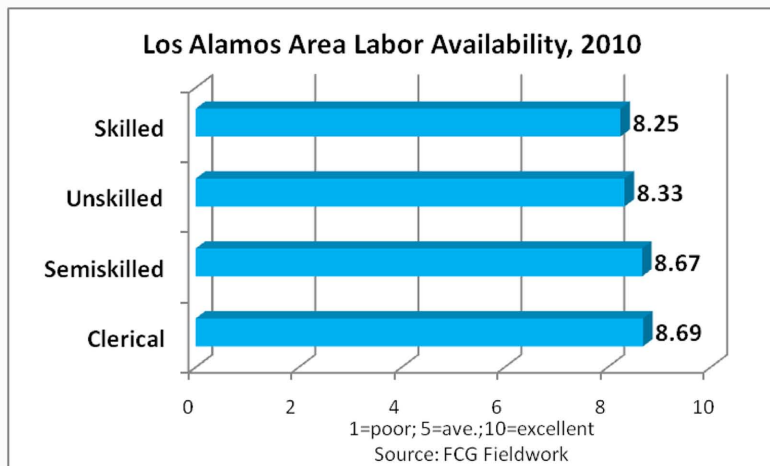

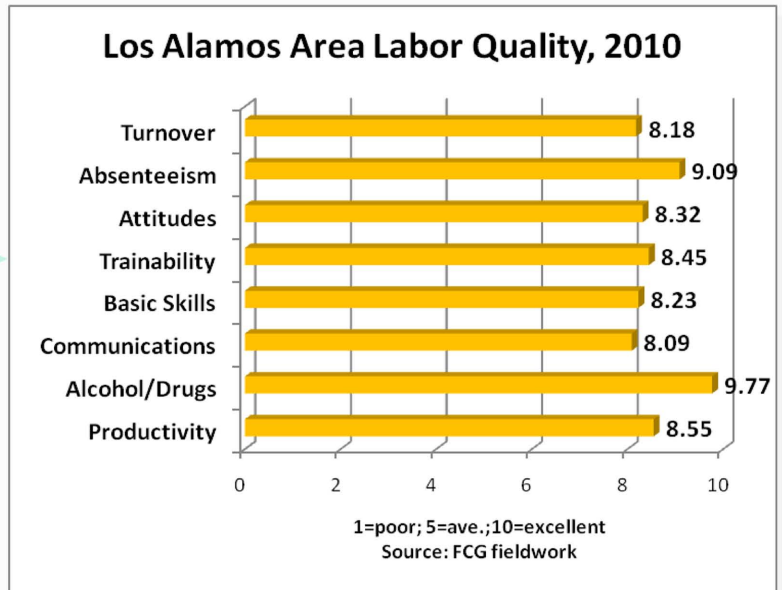

• Los Alamos, New Mexico •

• Los Alamos Commerce & Development Corporation •

Patrick Sullivan • Business Development Director • 190 Central Park Square • Los Alamos, NM 87544

Phone: (505) 661-4854 • <http://www.locateinlosalamos.com> • patrick@losalamos.org

• Los Alamos area market labor quality is rated “very good”.

• Labor availability in the Los Alamos area market is rated “very good”.

- Los Alamos area technical wages/salaries are very competitive, well below Livermore, CA.
- Los Alamos has one of the finest secondary educational systems in the State of New Mexico.
- Los Alamos area universities and colleges focus on technical education.